

Ozone

Monday, 25 February 2008

OZONE. The codename used by U.S. Army Corporal David Kunitz, member of the Eco-Warriors. Ozone was born in Three Mile Island, Pennsylvania. His Eco-Warriors equipment included special backpack which could purify the air of various toxins and pollutants. The Eco-Warriors were formed to stop threats to the environment. In their first assignment with the Joes, Ozone and Clean-Sweep were lead by Flint, who was temporarily reassigned. The three Joes had to stop a former Cobra agent, Cesspool, from polluting the ocean using toxic chemicals and an abandoned oil platform. As the others fought Cesspool, Ozone flew off in his Battle Copter and returned with the ultimate weapon to stop environmental offenders: a lawyer. Flint left the team shortly after the mission. The Eco-Warriors' subsequent missions remain classified.

(GI 123-125; Figures: 1, 2, 3, 4)