

Frusenland

Thursday, 28 February 2008

FRUSENLAND. A small, snowy nation located in Northern Europe. Frusenland is largely rural, and life there is still centered around reindeer hunting and herding. The country has only one major city, its capital, Frusenhausen. Despite Frusenland's peaceful history, the nation's prime minister bought many Terror Dromes from Cobra in the 1980s. When a new prime minister, Volff, was elected, he stopped buying launch bases from Cobra and made a pact with the United States, allowing the superpower to set up an Army research station in his country. Cobra was not pleased and sent the Baroness, Dr. Mindbender, and Cobra Commander (actually Fred VII) to persuade Volff to reconsider. When he refused, they activated the secret of the Terror Dromes: paranoia-inducing radio waves that sparked civil unrest in the formerly peaceful nation. Volff made a pact with Cobra, hoping to reestablish order. The G.I. Joe team arrived soon after to fight Cobra's forces and exposed Cobra's scheme to Volff. He then made an alliance with the United States, forcing Cobra to leave Frusenland.
