SIDESWIPE. The code name used by U.S. Army Sergeant Andrew Frankel, born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Sideswipe worked as a medical specialist with the reinstated G.I. Joe team, where his hobby of weightlifting helped him to carry injured soldiers off of the battlefield. Today, like many Joes, he is a reserve member of the team. During the conflict known as World War III, Sideswipe was stationed at the Walter Reed Medical Center. One of many Joes listed on World War III member assignment map first seen in AE #28. On his file card, Sideswipe shares the same specialties and weightlifting background as Stretcher. His action figure is a repaint of Stretcher's figure, with a new head.
